SCRIP TALK

"dis and data"

SCRIPTOR DAVE WHISMAN has reported a robbery of a portion of his coal mine scrip collection.. If any member is offered scrip from an unknown person or some source that seems suspicious, please contact Dave or some officer of NSCA....SCRIPTOR CHARLES JENKINS - the winner of the first 2 plus 2 contest (see the Mail Auction Sale in this issue) reports that he was really pleased with the prize of forty pieces of scrip. He noted that he found several pieces that he did not have in his collection....YOU can be the winner this month!!!!!!....SCRIPTOR LR LITTLETON of Pounding Mill, VA forwards interesting information on the ONSTAD MINE OF COALRIDGE, MONTANA. He forwarded a copy of a letter from a friend (Bernice Brenteson) which merits some publication on the bulletin. I will reprint this in another section of the bulletin along with SCRIPTOR LITTLETON'S comments.....SCRIPTOR R. R. TIPPY pens that he really enjoyed the Beckley Convention. He noted that they made a rush trip to LaGrange, Georgia the next day and that both he and Eleanor were "bushed" for several days.....TIPPY also forwarded information on the MCNABB COAL AND COKE COMPANY which will also be presented in another section of the bulletin.....SCRIPTOR BILL WILLIGES of California notes that my recent question as to why the Dayton, Ohio Post Office ordered 5,000 tokens from Ingle (see last issue of bulletin listing maverick tokens in 1938) states that they might have been used in connection with placing a token on registered mail sacks. He notes that he has some modern ones that were used for this purpose from New Mexico office. Any other member have a possible reason for a Post Office to use tokens???

....SCRIPTOR AL ZAIKA of New Jersey wrote that the JOHNSON TAVERN token listed in the last Mail Sale was a fantasy (token was withdrawn from sale as will be noted). He noted that the tokens were made by ALLAN JOHNSON of East Holden, Maine as samples from his token and medal striking business a few years back. Mr. Johnson also informed that his family actually ran a lumber operation in Dedham, but never issued any tokens.....SCRIPTOR JOHN HOYER writes "...the scrip from the last Mail Sale was a fine selection. I was pleasantly surprised at what I walked away with and the prices that paid for the lots. Only a few were duplicates but over twenty new pieces including two sets - a great Mail Bid Sale for me.".....JOHN also noted that it was very refreshing to him to purchase something that is rare and also historically significant (coal tokens). He plans to make the Fall 1986 Convention in Kentucky. He notes that collecting coal and lumber has put some fun back in numismatics for him after many disappointments with coin collecting.....NEW SCRIPTOR L.T.WILLIAMSON of South Carolina writes he has just received his first bulletin and am very pleased. He notes that he has been interested in coal mine scrip for years but had never found anyone else who was interested until he noted the article on NSCA in one of the coin publications. He contacted BILL WILLIAMS who was helpful in getting him started as a new member of NSCA.. He notes that he was born in Logan, West Virginia but left for South Carolina at age 17. He mentions that he still has a natural yearning for the coal fields and moutains of West Va.....SCRIPTOR MARK BALLARD of Illinois sent along a copy of an ad from COAL AGE that pictures a round 25¢ paper coal scrip token from THE PITTSBURG & MIDWAY COAL MINING CO. of Midway, Kansas. He asks whether other collectors have paper tokens from this company since it is not listed in Edkins. (Mark: I believe that I have two of these that were acquired from one of the TAMS members several years ago. I have them locked away and didn't have a chance to check as this is being prepared. W.C.)

CONSIGNMENTS WANTED FOR OCTOBER MEETING AUCTION

Although the October meeting may appear to be a long way off, there probably will be only two more issues of SCRIP TALK before the meeting. In order to give all members a chance to bid on the lots which will be auctioned at the October meeting, it is desirable to publish our listing in the next issue of SCRIP TALK.

The Auction Committee, therefore is making its semi-annual appeal for top quality coal and lumber scrip with a rating of R-7 or higher. We also would be glad to have paper scrip as well as stocks and bonds and other items related to the coal and lumber industries.

You can send your lots to the Auction Committee, PO Box 3015, Oak Ridge, TN 37830. Receipt of all material will be confirmed. If you have a number of pieces but do not know which to auction, send us a listing, and we will let you know which pieces would be best to run.

Our commission rates are 20% through $10.00; 15% through $50.00; 10% through $100.00 and 5% for sales over $100.00, all on a per piece basis.

All lots should be in our hands at least two weeks before the closing date on Walter's auction in this issue in order for us to get the listing ready for publication.

Consignments are urgently needed and your assistance will be helpful and appreciated.

REPRINTED FROM DECEMBER 1970 "SCRIP TALK"

SCRIP TALK -- December 1970

WHY THE ELI SMOKELESS 3¢ SCRIP TOKEN ??

Even tho we might have plenty of pennies, many sales (all under 50¢) call for counting out four pennies for the customer or on $1.00 sales (and less to 50¢) three cents back. This return on each sale calls for many coins and for much counting. If you can produce 500 of each of these (2¢, 3¢ and 4¢) for half value or less for experiment, I will gladly try out the idea and report back to you."End of Quote.

Comment: The West Virginia Legislature passed in 1933 a Consumers Sales Tax measure that called for the payment of a 1¢ tax on each purchase of 10¢ or more. Thus, the need for many pennies in the coal company scrip office. Too, the pennies of one company would normally be taken at the store of another company which would create a shortage of tokens. This store manager (incidentally still living near here) must have written to Mr. Ed Ingle of Ingle-Schierloh since the 3¢ token that I have was made by them. It would appear that Orco did not care to conduct the experiment and Ingle made up one sample (or possibly more) and sent one (or more) along to the store manager. I am attempting to contact Mr. Rupert and if additional information is secured, it will be presented as an item of general interest in a future bulletin.)

NOTES AND COMMENTS ON MONTANA SCRIP: (As provided for SCRIP TALK by L.R. Littleton).... Information from a letter from Bernice Brenteson of Montana is presented along with comments from Scriptor Littleton.. (Littleton: "if you will check in Edkins Catalog under Montana, you will note Coal Ridge, Montana and on the other page a sketch of a token from the George Onstad Mine Store. Marlowe Onstad is the grandson of George Onstad. Mrs. Brenteson and her family bought the store from Buchwald & Lobdell and she very nicely sent me some Buckwald & Lobdell tokens...out west the terminolcgy is tokens and not scrip. Mrs. Brenteson said the two stores in Coalridge were not company stores.)

(Brenteson: "I will try to answer your questions about the Onstad Mine. The first Coalridge was located 1 3/4 miles NE of the present Coalridge. The Hansen brothers started the coal mine there which they sold to a man named Hallick who in turn sold it to George Onstad. He also owned a store there but it really wasn't a company store, as such. There were probably never more than 5 or 6 miners working there at one time. I've never seen any of the tokens from there. They mostly sold groceries to the settlers in the area. There was a drug store, bank and even a newspaper called the "Coalridge Call" for a time. Also a post office. After the mine started operating at the present site of Coalridge everything closed up at old Coalridge. Buckwald & Lobdell had purchased the store from George in 1918 and they moved up here in 1926. George's son Clarence lives in Plentywood. I don't know how well he is but if you want more information you could write to his son: Marlowe Onstad, Westley, MT 59275. I took these names and dates from our Sheridan County History book. My husband knew George quite well as he and Clarence were friends. You can see George's farm from our window. No one lives there now. "

(Littleton: " I worked in Northeast Montana from 1977 until June 1984 and drove within 2 miles of Coalridge twice a week and never visited. I have also been in Roundup on several occasions. In December of 1985 I spent the entire month near Coalridge but when I wanted to visit the blizzard was too bad. My question is - when are tokens coal store tokens? Ms. Brenteson says 'no' and suppose Marlowe Onstad , the grandson, agrees."

NOTES ON "THE MCNABB COAL & COKE COMPANY" AS PROVIDED BY R. R. TIPPY

The company was incorporated under the laws of the State of Indiana. The company started acquiring coal land in 1883.. On June 21, 1884, the company stockholders held a meeting in Lawrenceburg, Dearborn Co. At this meeting they voted to issue 100 each bonds for $500. for the payment of 4,239 acres (McEwen grant). L. F. Headrick of Chattanooga was made trustee for sale of these bonds.

A previous sale on October 15, 1883, by George N. Leighton and wife, Julia of Hamilton County to McNabb Coal & Coke showed the location of this land to be in Mullins Cove on the Tennessee River. Time limited my checking additional listings, however, Book Q Page 440 and Book R Pages 16 and 17 did reflect that this company made purchases and/or had agreements with the Consolidated Coal & Iron Company on Sept. 20, 1887 and with the C.C. & I Co. and the T.C.C. & I Co. during the month of February 1885.

The bottom line of my research indicates that tokens from this company were used no earlier than the 1880's - probably used in the 1890's.

2 PLUS 2 --- THE REAL ANSWER

There is an old story among Industrial Relations and Employment people about the Employment Interviewer who was asked to find a well qualified secretary for a high level manager.

The Interviewer selected three women on the basis of extensive aptitude, psychological, and performance tests. He then asked the Manager to sit in on the final selection test for each applicant and make his decision.

The Interviewer called in the first applicant and asked her to give him the answer to '2 plus 2'. Without hesitation she said '4'. She was asked to wait until the other two had been tested. The Interviewer told Manager that this was a very intelligent, sound and capable applicant. Since she did not hesitate in giving her answer to such a basic question, she would make a very dependable secretary.

They then called in the second applicant and asked her the same question. Sensing that the question could be a trick, she hesitated a few minutes and replied '22'. She also was asked to wait. The Interviewer observed that this applicant also was quiet intelligent, sound and capable, and in addition, she possessed considerable imagination. She, therefore, should be able to handle the secretarial responsibility in an outstanding manner.

The third applicant was called in and asked the same question. She was somewhat cautious and suspicious of the question, so she decided to hedge her answer, and said that it could be either '4' or '22'. She also was asked to wait. The Interviewer told the Manager that this was the more outstanding of the three applicants, because in addition to possessing all of the attributes of the first two, she also showed considerable ingenuity in giving her dual answer. She, therefore, should be able to handle any problem which was likely to face a secretary.

The Manager thought for a few minutes and told the Interviewer to hire the one with the big breasts, because she had the best qualifications.

My apologies to the ladies (if this gets into print) for the reference, but after 35 years in Industrial Relations with the first five as an Interviewer and Employment Manager, I am not too sure that this was not the final consideration in the minds of many Managers when selecting a secretary.

I now submit that the suggested answer posed by the Editor is an attempt to divert the reader's attention and decision making process, and that the real answer lies in the tale presented above. I, therefore, lay claim to the 40 pieces of scrip. If declared the winner or if awarded the consolation prize, I request that the scrip be listed in the next auction, and that the proceeds from its sale be given to the NSCA Treasury.

TWO PLUS TWO IS ??? This little contest in Sale No. 107 was won by: Charles R. Jenkins. He was the first to guess that Lot No. 9 would bring the top price in the sale !! As noted, Lot 9 sold for $108.65 - a unique lumber token!! Thanks to all who entered!! As will be noted in Sale No. 108 the rules are being changed a little to give more bidders a chance to win !!! Along with what Lot will bring the top price, we ask that you guess the amount - the closest guess as to price along with the Lot number will receive the prize this sale !! See more details on the Bid Listings...

SALE COMMENTS: Many, many of the lots did not bring the minimum bid as will be noted...yet, many picked up some real 'sleepers' at the MB price!! Summer brings inactivity in collecting tokens and presents for you an opportunity to acquire 'goodies'. While others are at play, you can make hay with nice bargains!!

The Colonel is now looking for consignments of better tokens for future sale listings!! The better tokens will bring the price. Remember that the commission is only 20% and no cost on tokens that do not sell!! We must have itemized listings of any lots you send along with statements on the condition of each listing!! Too, the MB should be specified if you so desire!! We do not have the time or office help to list and examine your tokens for sale!!

This column by Bob Wright, retired Commercial-News editorial page editor, was first published Aug. 28, 1973. Wright's columns are a regular Reflections feature.

Westville, U.S.A.

When Coal was king and Liberty was queen

Westville, U.S.A., is several hundred miles from the Statue of Liberty, which has guarded New York's harbor for nearly a century. But the inscription on the base could just as well be on the signs at the village limits:

"Give me your tired, your poor, your huddled masses, yearning to breathe free."

For that is what Westville meant, way back when, to people who sought a spot in the Promised Land of America, a place to live, and work, and build houses and raise families.

They came to Westville, U.S.A., ahead of the Lady and afterward, in the Seventies and Eighties and Nineties, in the early 1900s. They came from England and Wales, from Scotland and Ireland, from Germany and Austria and Hungary, from Bohemia, Latvia and Lithuania, from Poland and Belgium and France and Italy — and a dozen other countries besides.

And the air they breathed was free air — even if a lot of it had coal dust mixed in. Because coal was king in those days.

Men who had learned to wrest black gold from the earth in faraway lands — and their stalwart sons and grandsons who followed in their determined footsteps — contributed to making Vermillion the premier coal-producing county in Illinois, which it was briefly in the late Nineties.

They also gave their lives — not in major disasters, despite the poor roof conditions in the field but in the many little accidents that were big in tragedy for the miners' families. From 1882 to 1947, when deep mining on a large scale ended, 401 died in the mines. A great many of these were residents of Westville or nearby.

But the miners did more than dig coal. They were pioneers in union organizations, lighting the way for those who came after.

State reports show that the organization then known as the United Miners of America (now the United Mine Workers of America, UMWA) signed the first contract in Illinois with the Kelly Coal Co. at Westville in January, 1890. Using this pact as precedent, the union negotiated with other mines between that date and November, 1890, when a state charter was issued. Ironically, other Illinois miners were paid about 40 cents a day more than in the Danville field as late as 1942. Thus, because their scale was used as a base in wage talks, our miners took a loss for the distinction of being first.

In the Twenties, the UMWA reached its peak membership of 4,052. And most of these were Westville men or worked in the Westville area mines.

When Bunnsville closed in 1947, followed by Peabody, there were those who thought Westville would become a ghost town — or at best, a bedroom suburb of Danville.

Red-blooded Westville residents scoffed at the first suggestion and were ready to take off their coats and roll up their sleeves at the second. Westville is very much flesh and blood today — and never will be any other community's suburb.

The statistics about Westville were faithfully recorded and publicized in its centennial year, back in 1973. But how do you add up the intangibles of personality and individuality? Westville has both to an astonishing degree.

Submitted by Scriptor Ore Vackette of Westville, IL. Permission to reprint in "SCRIP TALK" given by Bob Wright...

Astonishing to outsiders, that is, Westville's neighbors never are surprised by the vigor and strength of character, the zest for life, that characterize this community. Like the beer commercial put it, Westville people live with gusto. They work hard, play hard, put a great deal into life, get much out of it.

And over the years it has been thus. The forebears of today's Americans by birth were Americans by choice. They brought with them from the Old World the cherished traditions, the customs, the memories of their homelands. They added them to their new environment, enriching it. But it was assimilation, not substitution. They built homes and schools, stores and churches and saloons — and taller than most people knew how to keep them in proper perspective and order of priority.

A century-plus has gone into the melting pot and what has come out is a blend that is richer, stronger and better than any one of the original ingredients.

Westville, U.S.A. It is admirably American because those who built it were determined to be American when they left the lands of their birth — and because their descendants were determined to keep it American, even to the extent of later leaving their blood and lives on the soil of some of those same foreign lands.

The flags will fly proudly on the Fourth of July in Westville. They should. They will celebrate the re-dedication of a symbol that for a hundred years has inspired Westville people and millions more like them in helping to build a nation.

We do not have time to catalog and rate your tokens for listing !! Commission is only 20% and this helps to keep the bulletins coming your way !! No charge (except return postage) on all lots that do not sell !! Yes - you can specify a minimum bid if desired !! Please do not expect individual listings on lower rarity tokens - these should be grouped and sold as a lot!! Good tokens will bring a good bid !! Give it a try !!

W A N T E D :: Articles for publication in "SCRIP TALK" ... The best article printed during the coming year will win you a nice award at the May 1987 convention!! What do you consider your best coal token?? How did you acquire it ?? What started you collecting tokens?? Just a few ideas to get you started on something to write about !! Don't worry about literary style - the judges do not consider this in making the award !! Jot down your notes and comments and the Editor will attempt to do you a good job in getting the material on paper for the bulletin....
